THE REASONS FOR ALLOWANCE

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on March 31, 2004 has been entered.

The applicant's response filed 2/19/2003 to the Office Action has been entered; claims 5-7, 10-23 and 25 are pending.

2. The following is an examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

Concerning claims 5-7, 10-23 and 25, no prior art has been found teaching or suggesting the method of determining the presence or absence of one or more target compounds in a sample comprising the steps of providing a plurality of electrophoretic probes specific for the one or more target compounds, each electrophoretic probes having a target binding moiety and one or more eTag reporters attached by cleavable linkages that are cleaved by oxidation, the eTag reporters being distinguished from each other by electrophoretic mobility, combining the sample with the plurality of electrophoretic probes to form a target compound complex between each target compound and one or more electrophoretic probes, cleaving the cleavable linkage to release eTag reporters, separating and identifying the released eTag reporters on electrophoretic mobility to determine the presence or absence of the one or more target compounds.

The closest prior art is the reference of Grossman et al. (5,470,705, issued Nov. 28, 1995). Grossman et al. disclose a method of detecting a plurality of different sequences in a target sequence involving a plurality of sequence probes (See column 2, lines 54-56). The probe includes a binding polymer, a polymer chain that imparts to that probe, a distinctive ratio of charge/transnational frictional drag and a reporter attached to the binding polymer (See column 20, lines 52-57). The binding polymer is an oligonucleotide including at least 10-20 bases allowing hybridization to the target polynucleotide (See column 6, lines 66-67 and column 7, lines 1-10). The polymer chain has a ratio of charge/translational frictional drag, which is evidenced by a distinctive electrophoretic mobility in a non-sieving matrix (See column 7, lines 50-64). The polymer chain can be polyethylene oxide (PEO) or a polypeptide chain where the chains are attached to different-sequence binding polymers (See column 3, lines 11-18). The teachings suggest that the charge/translational frictional drag is consisted of carbon, hydrogen, oxygen, phosphorus, nitrogen, sulfur and boron as recited in claim 10. The label refers to a fluorophore or chromophore (See column 6, lines 39-44). However, Grossman et al. do not disclose that the reporter of the probes is cleaved by oxidation.

Any comments considered necessary by applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled "Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance."
